

University South Neighborhood Association (USNA) Meeting April 2, 2019

Sara Corrigan, President, opened the meeting with the pledge of allegiance.

Officer Chad Diedrich gave his crime report, which was very good overall, much to everyone's appreciation. Chad emphasized the importance of locking your doors to your homes, even if just being in your yard or going to the neighbors for just a moment. Also, closing your garage doors, even if you are home, and making sure all doors and windows are locked at night.

Shannon Stigelman, Treasurer, gave her report that we had $331.69 in the bank.

Sara mentioned that the deadline to register to vote will be next Monday, April 8. The next meeting in May will have Linda Singer as the guest speaker to demonstrate how to make your own rain barrel. On Saturday, March 13, the Master Gardener Association will have a demonstration on sharpening tools. This will be at 9:00 AM at 3501 E. Lloyd Expressway.

Next, Walter and Shirley Everett gave a wonderful presentation on planting low-maintenance perennials and talking about the Master Gardener Display Garden at their location on 3501 E. Lloyd Expressway. Also showing some of the plants that they have at their own home. On May 4, from 8-4, there will be a SWIMGA plant sale at the Vanderburgh 4-H Center -- come early.

Again, the subject of 628 S. Runnymede was brought up and discussed. The house is now owned by Safe Haven and is a halfway house for recovering drug offenders. Sara went through a list of other facilities in Evansville which serve the same purpose. She had read a letter from Ron London of the Area Planning Commission regarding the Runnymede location. If you are interested in contacting Ron, his e-mail address is RLondon@EvansvilleAPC.com

The next meeting will be Tuesday, May 7.
